DETAILED ACTION

Response to Amendment

1. In response to the Office Action mailed 1/9/2007, applicant has submitted an Amendment, filed 4/9/2007, amending all the independent claims 1, 7, 11, and 17, to overcome the prior art of record, as they persuasively argue in said Amendment. No new art having been found, the application is now allowable, for reasons given next.

Allowable Subject Matter

2. Claims 1-17 are allowed over the prior art of record. The following is an examiner's statement of reasons for allowance:

Amended independent claims 1, 7, 11, and 17 are allowed because they teach selecting items searched from at least one database, based on a topic-indicating phrase derived from input speech designating a search topic, by examining a full list of phrases in said databases in order to determine whether there is at least one common word between two or more of the word phrases, in order to select those items corresponding to phrases having at least one common word, and then labeling groups of selected items based upon said one or more identified common words.

As applicant persuasively argues, Chen's search relies on "lexicon hierarchy" to determine potential word "meanings" but does not examine word phrases to identify common words among the different phrases, and does not label groups of selected items based upon one or more identified common words.

Further, Tso merely provides search results with a category indicator that includes a text string identifying the corresponding category, but also fails to group items by identifying one or more common words in different corresponding word phrases, and fails to extract at least one common word in order to generate a label.

As applicant also points out, neither Chen nor Tso nor Pitt teach or suggest selecting items by detecting and ignoring a grammatical article. Pitt's approach would even use a grammatical article as the very basis for sorting.

Dependent claims 2-6, 8-10, and 12-16 are allowed because they further limit independent claims 1, 7, and 11, respectively, or their parent claims.

3. Any comments considered necessary by applicant must be submitted no later than the payment of the issue fee and, to avoid processing delays, should preferably accompany the issue fee. Such submissions should be clearly labeled "Comments on Statement of Reasons for Allowance."
